MANY MILLIONS ATTEND MOVIES PHOTO PLAY THEATERS OF ST. LOUIS.

More than 63,000,000 men, women and children attend the moving picture theaters in Greater St. Louis each year.

On an average nineteen per cent. of the population goes daily to the photo play houses.

The Sunday attendance is 179,539 and the average daily attendance is 154,891.

Every week 1,192,835 St. Louis people visit the 125 licensed theaters and each year 57,504,912.

Capital investments of the St. Louis moving picture business amounts to $6,000,000 and by authorities it is estimated that the operations keep some $8,000,000 in constant circulation by the year.

The revenue at the doors is about $6,000,000.

The above figures are from the statistics of the St. Louis Business Men's League.

They give some idea of the wonderful growth of the motion picture industry and serve to show why it is now the fourth industry in the United States.

WISHED SHE COULD DIE

And Be Free From Her Troubles,
but Finds Better Way.

Columbia, Tenn.—"Many a time," says Mrs. Jessie Sharp, of this place, "I wished I would die and be relieved of my suffering from womanly troubles. I could not get up, without plying at something to help me, and staying in bed most of the time. I could not do my housework."

The least amount of work tired me out. My head would swim, and I would tremble for an hour or more. Finally, I took Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I am not bothered with pains any more, and I don't have to go to bed. In fact, I am sound and well of all my troubles."

Cardui goes to all the weak spots and helps to make them strong. It acts with nature—not against her. It is for the tired, nervous, irritable women, who feel as if everything were wrong, and need something to quiet their nerves and strengthen the worn-out system.

If you are a woman, suffering from any of the numerous symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you. At all druggists.

"MADE IN AMERICA"

Manufacturers Urge Campaign of Education to Instill More Patriotism in Commercial Affairs.

(Philadelphia Public Ledger)
American manufacturers will find a broader American market when their wares, when feasible, are stamped or labeled "Made in America." This view, it was declared in interviews, is held by manufacturers in a number of lines.

"Why we never thought of it before is what amazes me," said an executive of a knit goods mill.

It was suggested by the knitted wear man that a label of forceful design be adopted as a further means of making domestic manufacturers readily distinguishable. "There should be no more variation than in the design and colors of the American flag," he continued.

"Make the design universal, and one will not have to stop to read to ascertain what it stands for."

The only objection that might be urged against labeling American cloth "Made in America," said an up-town textile manufacturer, "probably would be on the ground that it might not appeal to that element of the dear public that insists upon having the 'import' article. The proposal might, for this reason, meet some opposition from trades people who have reaped a harvest at times in selling American-made cloth as imported. It is an open secret that cloth woven in Philadelphia is sold in this city as imported, and it is said on excellent authority that an exclusive design in golf suits, manufactured for the State for a Western house, are labeled 'Imported,' the tags being supplied by the purchasing house."

"By instilling more patriotism in our every-day affairs," a manufacturer of cutlery said, "we would, I believe, check snobbishness, and while waiting for a revival of export business, would revive home trade."

Figures compiled by City Statistician E. J. Catell show that the consuming capacity of the United States is but two-thirds of productive capacity. "We can manufacture in eight months what we consume of domestic manufactures in 12 months," he avers.

By popularizing American-made goods, students of Germany hold, we may be able to continue production for at least 10 months in taking care of some consumption alone.

"Start out to make 'Made in America' a winning slogan," said a dry goods jobber, "and we'll have customers asking to see the label, and if it's not on the goods—well, can you imagine a loyal labor unionist buying anything that does not bear the union label?"

THE WAR'S DURATION AND THE WAR'S RESULTS.

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

It can be accepted as true that no one that is in touch with the war in Europe is better qualified to judge of its progress and estimate as to its duration than that cool, reticent and deliberate officer, Earl Kitchener of Khartoum.

Speaking in the House of Lords recently, he told his hearers that the war would probably be a long one, and this with full knowledge as to the actual military operations in Austria-Hungary, Russia, Germany, Belgium and France.

With Great Britain's expenses each day now approximating $4,000,000, and her army to be doubled in number from its strength of today; with France's expenditures in cash fully as great and her losses in property much larger than those of Great Britain; with Belgium devastated and her debts mounting skyward with the enormous costs that are charging to Germany, to Austria-Hungary, to Russia, daily, it would seem that Europe is going into debt at a very rapid rate and to amounts that will require scores of years of heavy taxes to liquidate.

Every one of these nations is destroying the present accumulations of its people and mortgaging the lives and labor of succeeding generations.

Within 90 days of the close of this conflict the exodus of the people of Europe will assume large proportions, and the United States, Canada, South Africa, Australia, Argentina, Brazil and Chile will become the mecca for the pilgrims from the war-stricken, tax-burdened countries of Europe.

Whether the war lasts 90 days or three years, the months and the years will bring to this country a larger demand for its products from the other continents of the world.

There are busy months ahead for the manufacturers and merchants of the United States—busy months for the transportation lines, for the skilled and unskilled labor of the country in its various branches.

The dislocations in finance and business in this country caused by the sudden declarations of war are being speedily adjusted, and everything is moving forward to a much larger volume of current business.

By the time the war closes our industrial conditions will enable this country to give employment to millions more of Europeans, and even today our agricultural conditions are such that millions of them could go to work with profit to the republic and gain to themselves.

While European countries are retreating financially, commercially and industrially, the way has been opened for a most marked advance of our own country in all these lines of material prosperity.

What a town man considers a day's work is regarded by a farmer as a chore.

DISSOLUTION

(German Federation Predicted By
Bishop Maes, Who Has Returned Home From the European War Zone

(Saturday's Times-Star.)

No vision of a future "United States of Europe," consoles Bishop Camillus P. Maes, who returned Friday to his diocese of Covington, from Belgium, the most devastated country of Europe. The prelate shook his head as he sat in his office Saturday morning, at the possibility of a final merger of European nations as an outcome of the war.

"There can be no melting pot in Europe," he said. "National feeling is too strongly imbedded; it can hardly be torn out. But what I do foresee is the undoing of the work of Bismarck. The empire of Germany will, I believe, once more be resolved into the autonomous states of which it was formerly composed, and instead of being emperor of United Germany, Wilhelm will be ruler of Prussia alone.

"This war will, I believe, put an end to tyrannical militarism, which is not confined to the German people. The German people, the great mass of them, do not, in their hearts, want this war."

Before he left Antwerp, Bishop Maes had a telephone conversation with Minister Brand Whitlock, who expressed the belief that the war would last a year or perhaps two.

Bishop Maes left Antwerp hurriedly without opportunity of bidding adieu to either of his brothers, John Maes, who had gone to Ghent, or Alphonse Maes at Courtrai, from whose home he had just returned to the temporary Belgian capital.

"The American minister warned me that unless I left at once I might not get out at all," said the bishop.

Three of his nephews are at the front with the Belgian army and seven grand nieces are engaged in Red Cross work either at home or with the hospitals, Bishop Maes stated.

Because theological students of army age are all at the front there must be a shortage in the priesthood all over Europe, he said.

"But there will be a corresponding shortage in their flocks," added the prelate, sadly. "I am convinced that already fully 200,000 men have fallen in this war. Of these at least one-half are married. That means 150,000 widows and their children bereft. Think of it!"

The main purpose of the Covington bishop's protracted stay in Belgium was to learn of the fate of the American college at Louvain, of which he is a director and president of alumni. But he could get no definite word, although he received a report that the hoisting of an American flag over the college, done at his suggestion, had saved it from destruction.

"After I was three days on shipboard I saw a copy of the London Graphic, showing a large picture of the devastated town. I fancied that I could detect, off in a corner, just the turret of our college. Then I felt partially assured and thanked God," he said.

Protection of Church.
"I feel more strongly than ever that for the church, protection is worse than persecution. Government protection fails in the end and where it is effective it impairs the vitality. In this country, in which I think God to be home again, we have a church free, strong and vigorous."—Bishop Camillus Maes of Covington.

These are often the symptoms of weak kidneys and there is grave danger in delay. Doan's Kidney Pills are especially prepared for kidney ailments — are endorsed by over 30,000 people. Your neighbors recommend this remedy—have proved its merit in many tests. Maysville readers should take fresh courage in the straightforward testimony of a Maysville citizen.

Henry Gallenstein, blacksmith, Popular St., Maysville, Ky., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills are the best of kidney remedies. I have used different kinds and no other has ever equaled this one. When my kidneys were out of order and I had pain in my back, I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and used them. They stopped the pains and my kidneys became strong. The cure has been permanent."

Mr. Gallenstein is only one of many Maysville people who have gratefully endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches—if your kidneys bother you—don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Gallenstein had—the remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores.
